REQUEST FOR LIST OF INVENTORS FOR PATENT APPLICATION

© 2005-2010 Robert Plotkin, P.C.

Title of Patent Application: _____

Our Matter Number: _____

Summary of Action Required

The purpose of this document is to obtain from you a complete list of inventors to be named in the patent application referenced above. Failure to name all of the required inventors, or inclusion of someone on the list of inventors who does not satisfy the legal definition of “inventor,” could cause any patents which issue from the patent application above to become invalid. Therefore it is important that you read this document carefully, so that you can provide us with a list of inventors that is legally accurate, particularly because the definition of “inventor” under U.S. patent law may differ from your current understanding of that term.

Please do not hesitate to contact us if you have any questions about whether someone should be included on the list of inventors.

Guidelines for Identifying Inventors

- Any person who conceived of any one or more of the inventions covered by the above-referenced patent application should be listed as an inventor. Only a person who contributed to the conception of the invention qualifies as an inventor.
- An inventor must contribute something new to the invention. Therefore, someone who merely contributed existing knowledge is not an inventor.
- Someone who used ordinary skill to carry out the instructions provided by another person to construct a working implementation of the invention is not an inventor.
- If the above-referenced patent application is a utility application, then an inventor must have conceived of a novel and nonobvious aspect of at least one of the claims in the patent application.
 - An inventor need not have contributed to all of the claims. Anyone who is even a co-inventor of even one claim must be listed as an inventor.
- If the above-referenced patent application is a provisional application, then an inventor must have conceived of a novel and nonobvious aspect of an embodiment described in the patent application.
- Someone is not an inventor merely by virtue of being a manager, project lead, executive, director, or owner of a company that owns a patent application.
